

Everyone Is Gifted

As Christian stewards, we believe that God has given everyone his or her own special gifts. But what does this mean? Our God-given gifts are those things that make us unique. They are the things we're good at, the things that make us happy when we do them. Once we know what our gifts are, we can develop them and share them with others. For example, if you like to read, you could use this gift to be a junior lector at church. You could also read to younger children at your school or even to others who, for whatever reason, cannot read on their own. Sometimes it is easier to see the gifts that other people have. When you see people using their gifts, let them know! When you give or receive a compliment about special gifts, it is truly a compliment to God, who created everything.

Unscramble the words below each picture to fill in the gifts that are being used. Then, fill in what you are good at or enjoy doing, and draw a picture of yourself using that gift.
